Effective Workplace Inspections

The key to a healthy and safe workplace is being able to identify hazards in the workplace and put a control in place to control the hazard before a person gets injured from it or property is damaged. Most workplaces struggle with being able to effectively identify hazards and therefore the hazard goes undetected, most often until an injury occurs or property is damaged. The most pro-active approach is through workplace inspections. These inspections should be conducted by all workplace parties (management, supervisors, workers and the joint health and safety committee or health and safety representative) in your workplace.

People conducting workplace inspections require training on recognizing health and safety hazards to be effective and pro-active in controlling hazards that may injury our workers, customers, public or cause property damage.

Here are some of the solutions that NSS offers to assist workplaces with recognition of hazards in the workplaces;

- Safety compliance walkthroughs of your workplace (with JHSC members, H&S representatives, supervisors and management)
- Safety Compliant Audit with a report of recommendations for compliance
- JHSC Committee Meeting Training
- JHSC Certification Training

Northern Safety Solutions offers JHSC Certification and JHSC Refresher training in a classroom setting or monthly in our public virtual training sessions
